JOSEPH SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

On July 19, 2022, Tribal Council, along with the Environmental Team, participated in the first completed restoration project ribbon cutting ceremony held at Eagle Ridge in Stratford Woods Park in Midland, Mich.

The Environmental Team's Manager Troy Techlin and Specialist Sally Kniffen serve on the Tittabawassee River Natural Resource Damage Assessment and Restoration (NRDAR) Trustee Council.

Kniffen said as part of this project, a team of dedicated and creative SCIT employees began working on an entrance sign for Eagle Ridge.

"We started this sign in November 2021 with three goals in mind: We wanted to focus on the language of

New Associate Judge Kevin Hesselink sworn in by Chief Jackson and Tribal Council

JOSEPH SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

On July 5, Chief Theresa Jackson administered the oath of office for the new Tribal Court associate judge, Kevin Hesselink.

The swearing in took place in Council chambers in the Black Elk Government Complex with Council members Diana Quigno-Grundahl, David Merrill Jr., Gayle Ruhl, Alice Jo Ricketts, Mary Quigno, Samantha Chippeway and Ron Nelson in attendance.

Chief Judge Michelle Horn said she believes filling the associate judge position will assist the court in dispensing judicial services.

"Having an associate judge on board will assist the court in processing cases more efficiently," Horn said. "Judge Hesselink has previously served as the prosecutor for the Tribe and I look forward to working with him in his new capacity. The familiarity he has with our staff and with the codes, ordinances and the community will allow him to immediately handle court cases."

Horn also acknowledges there are the benefits in hiring someone who has served as both an attorney, prosecutor and judge in other tribal communities (Little Traverse Bay Band).

"His varied experience will provide a good base to hear and rule on all case types filed with the Court,"

The August Tribal Observer was sent to press before the events leading up to the 38th annual Saginaw Chippewa Powwow. Look for coverage in the upcoming September issue.

In loving memory of Eric Lee Hunt

March 1, 1976 - July 18, 2013

With love,
Mom, Montana and Anthony

Susan Marie Leksche

August 18, 1958 – June 22, 2022

The Spirit of Susan (Sue) Marie Leksche was set free on June 22, 2022.

Sue was born on Aug. 18, 1958 in the Irish Hills Area.

Always a lover of animals and nature, Sue was an At-Large member of the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe of Michigan. A truly single mom, Sue opened her own pet grooming shop "Wash-n-Wags" in Plymouth where she worked until she retired in 2007. She was then able to fulfill her lifelong dream of owning some "country" land and chickens. She adored horses and creating art, especially stained glass. Her smile was infectious and her love was boundless.

Sue joins in eternal rest her parents, Marie Gatti (nee Griffin) and Louis Leksche, her brother, Louis Leksche III, and her beloved grandchild, Joshua Cook.

She leaves behind her siblings, Lou Ann Loiselle, Diane Leksche, William Leksche, and Frederick Leksche, as well as numerous nieces and nephews and friends both old and new. She is missed beyond what words can convey by her beloved daughter Angelique (Angel) Leksche, her grandchildren, Shelby Leksche, Brandon Cook, and Jamey Eatmon along with Angel's lifelong friends Eric Blade and Nicolle Brown.

Our mother, Grammy, sister, auntie and friend is gone too soon. All she wanted was for everyone to know how much she loved them no matter what, forever and always. May we all gather our memories close to our hearts and spread love and kindness every chance we can. May light perpetual shine upon her.

A celebration of her life was held at Burden & Patience-Montgomery Funeral Home on Saturday, July 2, 2022 at 3 P.M. The family received friends at 2 P.M. until time of service.

Rental Assistance for Housing for Client Hardship

Behavioral Health wishes to provide assistance to persons who are at risk of losing their housing. Behavioral Health's rental/mortgage assistance may be used to help individual households afford housing costs in the form of rent or mortgage. The maximum number of months allowed is three months in a 12 month span. Help with security deposits are not permitted under this assistance. With that in mind, the policy of Behavioral Health is to help all prospective applicants regardless of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, national origin, age, creed, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, and status with regard to public assistance. In addition, Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe of Michigan complies with local fair housing and civil rights laws and will help with reasonable rent/mortgage payment for applicants if they or any family member has a disability or handicap.

Property Priorities/Eligibility Screening Process

- Clients must be a SCIT member or direct descendant in order to be eligible for assistance with housing. Clients are also eligible if they are members of a federally recognized tribe and are residing in the defined service areas of Isabella, Midland, Clare, Missaukee, or Arenac counties.
- SCIT Behavioral Health will determine the individual's housing status, tribal affiliation and whether or not the tenant is able to abide by the terms of this agreement and could benefit from rental assistance for housing or from assistance with paying their mortgage payment.
- When rental/mortgage assistance funds are used to pay rent on units, the lease/mortgage must be between the program participant/applicant and the landowner.
- The participants must use the rental/mortgage assisted unit as their primary and only residence.

- Rent will be paid month to month and will not be paid in advance for future months.
- If approved, assistance is permitted for a maximum of three months out of a 12 month time span.
- Individuals who are deemed eligible to receive assistance must have a means to pay for a portion of their monthly rent. The portion one must pay will be 40 percent of the monthly rent/mortgage fee. The funding source through Behavioral Health pays for 60 percent of the rental/mortgage monthly fee.
- Assistance for furniture, security deposits, utilities such as electric, water, and heat are not permitted through this funding source.
- Participants must meet with Behavioral Health on a monthly basis to determine steps taken by the applicant to secure other financial means to pay for their rent/mortgage. If the participant misses these required appointment(s) for any reason, any further assistance toward rental payments may be terminated/ended.
- Behavioral Health is not responsible for locating or securing housing. Each participant is responsible for finding housing for themselves.

Application Procedure

- An applicant must submit a completed application to be considered for rental/mortgage assistance. Applications can be located at Behavioral Health by calling 989-775-4850 or by stopping by the front office. Staff from Behavioral Health will assist potential applicants with filling out the application if needed.

Soaring Eagle Waterpark and Hotel to begin room renovations

FREDRICK KUHLMAN

Migizi Marketing Manager

After 10 years of welcoming visitors from throughout the Midwest, Soaring Eagle Waterpark and Hotel has begun renovations to all 243 guest rooms.

With a customer base consisting of families with children, the guest rooms at the waterpark and hotel are subjected to usage beyond that seen by a traditional hotel. The case goods, such as beds and dressers, need repair and replacement, and the rooms themselves need repair, paint, and carpet.

The renovation will be performed in stages while the park and hotel remain open. The staged approach will limit the number of rooms out of service at any given time and allow for the continued operation of the property.

Migizi CEO Robert Juckniess and Bonnie Sprague, general manager of the Soaring Eagle Waterpark and Hotel, have collaborated with the Migizi Board of Directors to ensure that the renovation is completed in a timely manner, with special attention being given to reducing the cost of the work.

To assist with cost-saving, case goods, when possible, will be repaired and refinished instead of replaced. Repair and refinishing will significantly reduce the costs of the work being done as those pieces can be returned to service while looking fresh and new.

The work began on July 30 and is scheduled to wrap up in late spring.

Soaring Eagle Waterpark and Hotel has already benefitted from several projects to update and refresh the property.

The common areas, such as lobbies and hallways, have received paint, carpet, and new brighter and more efficient lighting. An all-new, larger retail space and new arcade have been added, and more improvements are planned.

A new vending area and autism sensory room are slated to be opened in the near future. Adding the autism sensory room will make Soaring Eagle Waterpark and Hotel the only waterpark in Michigan with that amenity. The staff at the property have all received specialized training in working with guests with autism.

Migizi leadership continues to work with the Board of Directors in developing plans for the waterpark expansion. One proposal has already been submitted, and a revised plan is currently under development.

Tribal Libraries host first mziniganan nda-daandim (book sale)

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

The Tribal Libraries hosted its first mziniganan nda-daandim (book sale) from 1 to 6 p.m. July 25-27 in the Eagles Nest Tribal Gym.

Books were $1 for hard cover and .50 cents for paperback. Audiobooks, DVDs and children's picture books were also for sale.

According to Tribal Librarian Anne Heidemann, the idea of the book sale had been in the works for years.

In past years, the Tribal Libraries didn't collect enough books to have a sale. As of late, the Tribal Libraries are awarded grants that replace outdated collections.

"We have to live within our means in terms of space in the libraries, of course," Heidemann said. "So when we bring in new items, older items must move on."

The libraries were able to use some storage space in the mostly-vacant old Tribal Operations building.

"The libraries have a frugal budget, so selling the books is a way to take in a little bit of fundraising revenue to use to support library services," Heidemann said. "When we know for sure what our Tribal and grant budgets look like for the coming year, we will determine the precise use of the funds in the area that is most needed."

Prior to the sale, donations of books in good condition were accepted July 18-22.

“Once the PA position was filled, I continued on as a part-time assistant prosecutor for SCIT until early 2022,” Hesselink said. “I have previous experience working in the tribal justice system as both a part-time assistant prosecutor (approximately four years) and as a full-time prosecutor (a year and a half) for the LTBB Tribe in Petoskey. One of the main strengths I bring to the bench is the length and depth of my experience.”

Hesselink said he has five (part-time) years judicial experience as a family court referee, and has been a prosecutor in state and tribal courts for more than 18 years.

“I have 15 years of experience as a private attorney working in criminal, family, probate, and business law, I have taught criminal law and procedure for 28 years at Kirtland Community College’s Regional Police Academy, and I have participated in more than 200 jury trials in my 35 years as a lawyer,” Hesselink said. “I also hope that my many years of life experience as a husband, father, grandfather and athletic coach will also help me on the bench to exhibit wisdom, discernment, mercy, grace and, ultimately, justice.”

Techlin said the Dow/Tittabawassee River Natural Resource Damage Assessment and Restoration (NRDAR) case began in 2006 and this development is one of many that will be happening in the upcoming years.

“The purpose of NERDA, is to unite the Trustees for natural resources injured by contaminants and provide them with a mechanism to first assess damage, and then, with the help of the community, decide how to restore them,” Techlin said. “This project preserves and enhances 140 acres of forest and marsh habitat in Midland, providing a unique urban nature preserve adjacent to the existing Stratford Woods Park. We work together with states, tribes, and federal agencies to identify the losses and to obtain funding to bring those resources back, and, as importantly, restore to users the benefits they lost.”

Speakers at the ceremony included Lisa Williams with U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Dan Eichinger from Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources, District Three Tribal Councilman Frank Cloutier, Diane Brown Wilhelm with the City of Midland, and Elizabeth Browne with the Michigan Department of Environment, Great Lakes and Energy, with several Tribal Council members in attendance.

Cloutier addressed the media and nearly 80 people in attendance and highlighted the spirit of cooperation. Cloutier expressed how much the Tribe values those qualities of governmental cooperation on environmental projects.

“Great work takes time, dedication and commitment and you have all demonstrated the importance of that today with your presence,” Cloutier said. “Today, our Tribal Council stands with you as we celebrate all of that and look forward to more opportunities for collaboration and partnership.”

The Environmental Team offered their special thanks and appreciation to the following:

GIS Analyst Kelly Pilarski who created the maps and provided creative input, Ziibiwing Center Research Analyst Anita Heard who assisted with procuring the old photos and history and Anishinaabe Language Revitalization Outreach Specialist Isabelle Osawamick who provided the language and the phonics translation of Anishinabemowin.

Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort employees awarded for years of service

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

The Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort recognized its employees for achieving years of service on June 29. Held on the outdoor concert stage, the event honored employees who have achieved five, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30 and 35 years of service. This year celebrated the past two years as no celebrations were held in 2020 or 2021 due to the pandemic.

Bernard Sprague, director of hotel operations, was honored for reaching 35 years of service.

Human Resources Director Louanna Bruner shared the following about Sprague and his time serving the Tribe:

“Here’s a little trivia fact for you: Bernie started his employment with the Tribe three days before the United States Bicentennial celebration July 1, 1976. Bernie worked for the Indian Action Team, Inter-Tribal Council and, in the late ‘80s, he worked for the (Saginaw Chippewa) Construction team.

In the early ‘90s, he started working in various gaming departments: bingo, hard count, and vault cashier. He was the director of Maintenance and Housekeeping in 1993 but when the new casino opened, the Maintenance and Housekeeping department became two separate departments.

In 1998, he pivoted his career and became the Parks and Recreation coordinator. That must have been where he found his love for organized sports. Bernie coached basketball, scheduled golf outings and got to do what he loved!

In 2003, he became our sub-chief and served three terms on Tribal Council. He championed the exposure of Jack Abramoff, who was once one of the most powerful lobbyist in Washington who conspired to defraud several tribes including the SCIT. Bernie’s testimony in the senate hearing was key to Abramoff being convicted of fraud. Hollywood even made a movie about it: “Casino Jack.” Why they had Graham Greene play Bernie Sprague is beyond me! Bernie held his own in the senate hearing, he could have handle his own in the movie! We already know he has dance moves like Elvis.

Bernie eventually returned to gaming and in 2011 became the director of hotel operations. Today Bernie is always creating employee incentives which include Bernie Bucks and even fun employee events like golf outings and corn hole tournaments. You can also catch Bernie volunteering as the caller for our annual Car Bingo.”

Four employees were recognized for 30 years of service: Ella Hunt, Daniel Davis, Kathleen Morrison and Brent Jackson.

Bruner shared the following about Ella Hunt:

“When Ella turned 18, she knew she was going to work for the Tribe. She had thoughts of working (in) Food and Beverage or maybe in Finance until Frank Davis called her and asked her if she wanted to deal blackjack like her brother, Jay. She thought to herself, “I guess I can do that?”

Well not only could she do that, she excelled in that. Ella’s career would continue to grow as fast as the casino grew. In 1993 she was promoted to pit boss and became a pit manager in 1998. Less than a year later she became a shift manager.

Although her career brought her much success her greatest joy was the birth of her son, Brandon. Ella continues to develop her and enhance her knowledge. In 2020, she graduated from the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College.”

Bruner shared the following about Daniel Davis:

“Daniel started in 1990 as a blackjack dealer. He transferred to the Finance department for almost 10 years holding positions such as cage and vault cashier, supervisor and finance manager. In 2001 he returned to table games and with his acquired management experience he quickly became a floor person, and today he is a table games supervisor.”

Bruner shared the following about Kathleen Morrison:

“Kathleen started her career in 1988 as a part-time table games dealer. Kathleen has spent all of her career in the table games department. In 1995, she became a pit boss and then a floor person. Today she is a table games supervisor and we celebrate her continued dedication to the table games department, Soaring Eagle and the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe.”

Bruner shared the following about Brent Jackson:

“Brent started as a blackjack dealer in 1989. He has held every position in table games. Pit boss, supervisor, poker pit manager, and shift manager and has been the table games director since 2009. Brent has left the table games department to serve on the Gaming Commission and as the chairperson. His experience in regulations was a good Segway into Tribal politics. In 2003 he was elected to Tribal Council and has served three terms and served as our sub-chief in 2015. As the table games director, Brent has weathered us through the COVID closure and has been a vital part of our poker room reopening next month!”

Mardi Gras masks and beads were available for those looking to get a little festive.

"Family Fun Day is just one way we show our appreciation to our team," said Casino CEO Melinda Coffin. "We work hard and it's great to give our team a day to have some fun with their families and create some great memories."

This year also kicked off a new Soaring Eagle years of service program with a ceremony from 3 to 5 p.m. on the main stage. Employees were recognized for achieving five, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30 and 35 years of service.

A team member car and bike show was also held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the back portion of the hotel parking lot; attendees voted on their favorite car and motorcycle of the day.

Michigan Indian Family Olympics return in person: SCIT takes home the gold

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Game on! The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe once again hosted the Michigan Indian Family Olympics. This year's event was the 34th annual and again held at Central Michigan University's Bennett Track & Field on Friday, July 22.

This year's participating and winning tribes are listed below.

With 518 total points, SCIT took home the gold.

Shortly after 9 a.m., the ceremony began with a grand entry; a half lap around the track. Tribal flags were carried and Onion Creek Drum provided a welcome song.

A flag song followed the opening walk.

"So great to be back in person," said event emcee Erik Rodriguez, public relations director. "Great crowd this morning, we're happy to see all of you here."

MIFO was canceled in 2020 for the first time in 33 years due to the pandemic. Last year held the first remote competition.

This year's blessing was provided by Chief Theresa Jackson and the National Anthem was performed by Kiara Ekdahl.

Central Michigan University's Athletic Director Amy Folan provided welcoming remarks.

"We are so happy to be having this event again... I am super excited, it's my first one," Folan said. "One of the things that I was so excited about with this job is our affiliation with the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe. It is a great honor to partner and be CMU family. We are so happy to celebrate this. To see you compete, to see you continue to have great memories and for us to celebrate and honor the heritage, tradition and your legacies."

An incredible amount of activities were available to compete in throughout the day including: archery, softball throws, long jumps, fitness circuit and jump roping, bean bag tosses, kids' obstacle course, free throw and three-point basketball shots, lacrosse speed shots, baby crawl and tot trot.

Track events included: 10-meter dash, 20-meter dash, 400-meter walk, 400-meter run, one-mile run, 50-meter run, 100-meter run.

The MIFO Golf Tournament was held one day prior on Thursday, July 21 at Pleasant Hills Golf Course in Mount Pleasant, Mich. It was in 2012 that the golf competition was added.

Concluding the games for the past several years is the tug-o-war competitions with different age groups and tribes.

Everyone must have had a score card and bib number to participate in each competition. All morning events were listed on one side of the card, afternoon events listed on the other.

Scoring included: five points for first place (gold medal), three points for second place (silver) and one point for third place (bronze).

"We had a fun, safe and healthy day in the sun," said Jaden Harman, MIFO head coordinator. "It was great to see an impressive turnout from our SCIT community and to be joined again with the tribal communities around the state!"

With the exception of last year's virtual event where Gun Lake was declared champions, SCIT has been the champions for seven years in a row, from 2013 to 2019.

MIFO began in 1987 by Sue Siller, former health educator for SCIT. She was assisted and supported by the Parks and Recreation Committee, which volunteered its time and resources to the community.

MIFO was started to promote health and wellness through a family fun day of physical activity with mainly track and field events, along with swimming events, for SCIT Members and their families. This expanded to include other tribes and tribal organizations throughout Michigan.

Committee members included: Jaden Harman, head coordinator and Nimkee Fitness coordinator; Walt Kennedy, head of track events and public health director; Erik Rodriguez, announcer and public relations director; Joseph Sownick, public relations manager; and Brandon Schultz, strategic grant specialist.

The Committee stated feedback is welcome. The Committee is always looking to "sharpen and make the event better each year."

"I would like to express my gratitude to all the volunteers that came out to make this event happen," Harman said. "This event takes a true community effort and we wouldn't be able to do it without you."

For anyone who has yet to pick up their medal, the medals may be picked up at Nimkee Fitness Center.

In 2020, Congress designated the new 988 dialing code to operate through the existing National Suicide Prevention Lifeline.

The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) is the lead federal agency, in partnership with the Federal Communications Commission and the Department of Veterans Affairs, working to make the promise of 988 a reality for America. Moving to a 3-digit dialing code is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to strengthen and expand the existing National Suicide Prevention Lifeline (the Lifeline).

Of course, 988 is more than just an easy-to-remember number—it is a direct connection to compassionate, accessible care and support for anyone experiencing mental health related distress—whether that is thoughts of suicide, mental health or substance use crisis, or any other kind of emotional distress. Preparing for full 988 implementation requires a bold vision for a crisis care system that provides direct, life-saving services to all in need.

SAMHSA sees 988 as a first step towards a transformed crisis care system in much the same way as emergency medical services have expanded in the US.

Developed in collaboration with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

In pursuit of this bold yet achievable vision, SAMHSA is first focused on strengthening and expanding the existing Lifeline network, providing life-saving service to all who call, text or chat via 988. Longer term, SAMHSA recognizes that linking those in crisis to community-based providers—who can deliver a full range of crisis care services—is essential to meeting crisis needs across the nation.

Bigger than a 'block party:' Mix Tape Tour features New Kids on the Block, Salt-N-Pepa, En Vogue, Rick Astley

What do you get when you mix New Kids on the Block with Salt-N-Pepa, En Vogue and Rick Astley? One fast-paced, entertaining show.

As part of the Mixtape Tour 2022, the performers hit the road together and stopped at Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort for a June 23 outdoor concert.

The evening was presented as a variety show; instead of one group taking turns with their own set, the artists inter-mixed throughout the nearly three-hour show. New Kids on the Block opened and closed the show.

Full of choreographed moves, matching wardrobes, confetti, streamers and pyro, NKOTB brought the energy, and fans were screaming in every direction.

NKOTB members – Donnie Wahlberg, Joey McIntyre, Danny Wood and brothers Jordan and Johnathan Knight – began the show with “Block Party,” “My Favorite Girl,” “Dirty Dancing,” “Summertime,” “Cover Girl,” “You Got It (The Right Stuff)” and “The Whisper/Shout.”

Jordan Knight and Donnie Wahlberg both lifted their shirts several times, causing squeals from the audience. Wahlberg has taken on the role as the unofficial frontman of the group; hamming it up and speaking to the audience with his natural stage presence.

“It is hot, it is humid and it’s not fair we’re up here (on stage) with a nice breeze while you’re all hot and squished together, so we’re coming to you,” Wahlberg said to the screaming fans as the band-mates went into the audience to perform a song.

In matching silver dresses, En Vogue, one of the world’s best-selling girl groups of all time, proved their vocals and harmonies still flawlessly mesh. Rhona Bennett joins original members Terry Ellis and Cindy Herron in the group.

Herron had one of her legs in a walking cast and sat on a stool downstage but didn’t miss a beat with the choreographed hand and head movements.

En Vogue performed “My Lovin’ (You’re Never Gonna Get It)” and “Free Your Mind.” You may remember Rick Astley – maybe from 2007 when he and his video for “Never Gonna Give You Up” went viral and became part of a meme. Astley, looking dapper in a suit, came out on stage for a couple of tunes, “Together Forever” and “It Would Take a Strong Strong Man.”

NKOTB returned to the stage, this time sporting matching sweatshirts and shiny black pants, performing a mesh up of “House Party,” “Hold On,” “Return of the Mack” followed by “Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)” and “Twisted.”

The vibe was right and the concert was in full swing when Salt-N-Pepa finally made their appearance. Cheryl Renee James, aka Salt, and Sandra Jacqueline Denton, aka Pepa, make up the female hip-hop group which formed in New York City in 1985.

Salt-N-Pepa began with “None of Your Business,” followed by “Expression,” “Let’s Talk About Sex,” “Shake Your Thing” and “Whatta Man.”

En Vogue joined Salt-N-Pepa to perform “Don’t Let Go.”

The concert didn’t stop there. Each act came out for more and more.

NKOTB was up again. Joey McIntyre came out solo to perform a belt-out-loud rendition of “Please Don’t Go Girl.” The boys joined for “Games,” “Tonight” and a mesh up of hits from artists including Whitney Houston, Cyndi Lauper, Bon Jovi and more.

Each act performed their most well-known hits towards the end of the evening including “Never Gonna Give You Up” for Astley, “Hold On” for En Vogue, “Step by Step” for NKOTB and “Push It” for Salt-N-Pepa.

All groups returned to the stage together to close the show with “Bring Back the Time” and once more, Astley’s “Never Gonna Give You Up.” The fans were reeling in the nostalgia.

Monster Truck Madness, fireworks at SECR create roaring start to holiday weekend

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

The speed, power and destruction of monster truck racing was on full display during Monster Truck Madness at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort. The event – held on Saturday, July 2 – thrilled audience members of all ages.

A pit party took place prior to the event. Fans were able to see the trucks up close, and even take a ride in a specially built monster truck. The drivers were also available for photos and autographs.

The gargantuan trucks truly are a spectacle, and a loud one, at that. Their 1,800 horsepower engines allowed the trucks to tear across the arena at speeds of up to 70 mph, while launching upwards of 30 feet into the air.

The truck lineup featured 10 fan favorites including: Dirt Crew, Dozer, Jurassic Attack, Kamikaze, Crushstation, Lumberjack, Reckless Drivin, Bad Habit and Tailgator.

The event also saw the debut of the Eagle Sports and Casino truck, piloted by Elliot Miller.

Taking first place in the racing competition was Bad Habit, with Dirt Crew winning the freestyle event.

A free fireworks show followed the event.

Concert review: Chris Stapleton stuns, Elle King impresses Soaring Eagle audience

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

He could sing the ABCs and I would still be mesmerized and listen intently. It's rare for an artist today to sound even better than the recording but somehow Chris Stapleton makes it happen.

When I tell people I like Chris Stapleton, they say, "Oh, so you're a country music fan." Not quite. I'm an outlaw country, soul, Southern rock, gospel, shreddin' guitar and growling vocals fan, and Chris Stapleton delivers all of the above.

During his second return to the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort's outdoor stage, Stapleton performed a two-hour set from 9:15 to 11:15 p.m. on Thursday, July 21.

Stapleton packed the venue (sold-out) and the performance was just as much Southern rock and blues as it was country.

Stapleton and the six-piece ensemble launched right into their version of storytelling: told with their wailing instruments. The set began with "Nobody to Blame," "Parachute" and "Second One to Know."

"Sure is a wonderful feeling to stand up here tonight and have people show up," Stapleton said. "Ya'll have it made in Michigan in the summer, it's hotter than hell in Nashville right now."

Better-than-the-record renditions continued on stage with "Starting Over," "Millionaire," "Hard Livin'" and "Worry Be Gone."

"This next song is the first song we ever had on the radio; it shot all the way up to No. 46," Stapleton said, stirring audience laughter, mentioning "What Are You Listening To?"

With only Stapleton on stage, the song was performed as a solo acoustic; same for "Traveler," which he said the lyrics came to him during a road trip with his wife.

"This song's been with me a long time, since I was playing bars full of nobody," he said about "Whiskey And You."

Stapleton and the band then performed a bit of outlaw country mixed with soul in "Arkansas," "You Should Probably Leave," "Midnight Train to Memphis" and "Might

As Well Get Stoned." Stapleton sampled Lynyrd Skynyrd's "Free Bird" before jumping into "Devil Named Music."

"I Was Wrong," "Them Stems," "Fire Away" and "Broken Halos" were also performed.

The band played the groove to "Tennessee Whiskey" as Stapleton ad-libbed introductions for each one of his band members, including his wife, Morgane, who provides backing vocals.

Even ad-libbing, Stapleton displayed his growling, soulful vocals without missing a beat. His bandmates included world-renowned harmonica player Mickey Raphael, known for his work with Willie Nelson.

After each band member was introduced, the band performed "Tennessee Whiskey."

Morgane Stapleton, Chris' wife, provides backing vocals and tambourine during the Thursday evening show.

The encore included "Outlaw State of Mind."

As a guitarist, as a vocalist, and as a songwriter, Stapleton really is 'as smooth as Tennessee Whiskey.'

American singer-songwriter and multi-instrumentalist Elle King opened the show at 8 p.m. with a 45-minute set.

Elle King stunned the crowd with her versatile talent and great sense of humor. Her musical style encompasses country, blues, rock and soul.

King, the daughter of comedian Rob Schneider, released catchy hits "Ex's & Oh's" and "Drunk (And I Don't Wanna Go Home)," a collaboration with country music superstar Miranda Lambert.

King certainly showcased her talent and comfort being on stage.

After her set, concertgoers could be heard discussing how great she was. Morgane Stapleton must be a fan too, as she rocked King's merchandise on stage.

Rumours: The Ultimate Fleetwood Mac Tribute Band leaves Saganing, community 'hypnotized'

You've heard it here first 'cause this ain't no "Secondhand News!" On Thursday, June 30, Saganing Eagles Landing Casino & Hotel paid tribute to the vocal stylings and incredible musicianship of Rock & Roll Hall of Fame members, Fleetwood Mac, by welcoming Rumours: The Ultimate Fleetwood Mac Tribute Band.

Performing a full lineup of tracks from their namesake's monumental and emotionally-charged 1977 album, "Rumours," as well as subsequent albums, the group covered the span of two decades of hits.

Rumours was formed in Los Angeles during summer 2012. Though a group of contemporary young people, their website states that their goal is to "take their audiences back to a time when music was still an unbridled cultural experience and bands weren't afraid to put on a show."

After Rumours finished their residency at the legendary Roxy in Los Angeles, they were asked to be on AXS TV's "World Greatest Tribute Bands."

As Saganing's second-ever Tribute to Summer Concert Series show, the venue area was packed full of young and old who were singing and dancing along in the simmering heat to the sights and sounds of the '70s and '80s.

As loyal to the material as they are to era and people they are portraying, Rumours has "put together a show that spares no attention to detail."

"Recreating the band's legendary persona, in all its youthful glory from 1975-1987", they play equipment from the period, wear costumes accurate to the time, and embody the artists themselves – their characteristics, their vocals, and their famed chemistry. Speaking with the crowd, the British and American band members' distinct accents were on full display.

Arriving on the stage at about 7:30 P.M., the group comprised of members Jesika Miller (Stevie Nicks), Tuzy Ellis (Christine McVie), Ned Brower (Mick Fleetwood), Taylor Locke (Lindsey Buckingham), and Nic Johns (John McVie), opened the show with "The Chain." They then went right into the Christine McVie-penned, "You Make Loving Fun," followed in quick succession by Mac's greatest hit, the ethereal Stevie Nicks-fronted "Dreams."

"Say You Love Me," "I Don't Wanna Know" and "Over My Head" kept the tempo up, energy which stayed high through the performance of "Don't Stop."

"Songbird" created a slower, more intimate moment for the crowd, while "Tusk" brought to the stage the much more experimental sound of its eponymous "Rumours" follow-up album. The aforementioned "Rumours" and "Tusk" weren't the only Mac albums covered: 1982's "Mirage" and 1987's "Tango in the Night" were represented by "Gypsy" and "Little Lies," respectively. While on the topic of dancing, there may not have been anyone tangoing, but several folks took the opportunity to demonstrate their line dancing skills.

As the daylight started to wane, the group continued playing. Every gamut was covered, from the catchy, upbeat "Little Lies" and "Everywhere," to the moody "Edge of Seventeen" from Nicks' 1981 solo venture, and the philosophical classic "Landslide." The group closed the show with "Rhiannon" and "Go Your Own Way" – Lindsey Buckingham's rebuttal to the aforementioned "Dreams."

Per reports from Saganing Eagles Landing Manager Bob VanWert and Security

Department Director Michael Peruski, it is estimated that up to 1400 people attended the free event.

Peruski stated that he and his family were approached by members of the public who complimented him on the "wonderful time" and "great show." He added that he is pleased Saganing can provide a place for family and friends to get together who "haven't seen each other for years".

It seems a good time was had by all, including the group itself. When asked, the group said, "We had such a great time performing at the Saganing Eagles Landing Casino & Hotel. We can't wait to come back!"

Guest and Saganing employee Cheri Cousins, from Pinconning, Mich., stated that this was her "first concert ever" but it wouldn't be her last.

The next show, The Purple Experience, a Prince tribute artist, took place Thursday, July 14.

Upcoming tribute band shows include: Back to Black, an AC/DC tribute band on Aug. 11 and Terry Lee Goffee: World's Greatest Johnny Cash Experience on Aug. 25.

The Black Crowes stopped at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort on their massive summer tour entitled Shake Your Money Maker Tour, in celebration of their historic 1990 breakthrough album of the same title.

The Black Crowes shared the evening of rock hits with Stone Temple Pilots and Mac Saturn on Saturday, July 9 on the outdoor concert stage.

“At a time when journalists were mourning the death of rock as cheesy pop and hair metal dominated the charts, The Black Crowes emerged from Atlanta to resuscitate it,” reads the band’s website theblackcrowes.com. “The authentically gritty blues-rock album, whose title is an homage to blues legend Elmore James, went double platinum in its first year.”

The Black Crowes’ portion of the show began with one of the back-up singers putting money into a jukebox placed on stage. The jukebox then begins playing “Shake Your Money Maker” as the band members walk out to the full bar set up at the back corner of the stage.

The band members then walk to their spots on stage, grab or sit at their instruments and launch into “Twice as Hard,” “Jealous Again,” “Sister Luck,” “Could I’ve Been So Blind” and “Seeing Things.”

“Well, I told you it was a rock and roll show!” said lead vocalist Chris Robinson after the band performed “Hard to Handle,” an Otis Redding cover the band also recorded.

Robinson strutted around on stage – he first entered the stage whirling and twirling a colorful umbrella – in between passionately belting his soulful, gospel-like vocals.

Either you have swagger or you don’t. If you have to ask what swagger is, then you certainly don’t have it. The Black Crowes have swagger.

The band flawlessly performed “Thick N’ Thin,” “She Talks to Angels,” “Struttin’ Blues,” “Stare It Cold,” “No Speak No Slave,” “Been a Long Time (Waiting on Love),” “Sometimes Salvation,” “Wiser Time” and “Remedy.”

Their encore after an hour and a half set included The Rolling Stones’ cover “Rocks Off.”

to The Black Crowes from 8 to 9 p.m.

Stone Temple Pilots began their portion of the show with “Wicked Garden,” “Vaseline,” “Big Bang Baby,” “Down” and “Meadow.”

“It’s a pleasure to be with you all here tonight,” said STP lead vocalist Jeff Gutt, “and I want to thank The Black Crowes for playing with them. Thank you boys.”

Gutt has been the lead vocalist for STP since November 2017. STP’s original lead vocalist Scott Weiland died of a drug overdose in December 2015. Gutt is the former lead singer of Dry Cell and he was on the reality TV series “X Factor.”

Band members also include brothers Dean DeLeo (guitar), Robert DeLeo (bass, backing vocals), and Eric Kretz (drums).

STP took the stage when it was still daylight outside.

“I love that we have the sun and spotlights both on,” Gutt said. “When we are wearing sunglasses on stage, we aren’t trying to be cool, we just can’t see (expletive).”

STP kept rocking with “Big Empty,” “Plush,” “Interstate Love Song,” “Crackerman,” “Dead & Bloated,” “Trippin’ on a Hole in a Paper Heart” and “Sex Type Thing.”

Detroit rock band Mac Saturn opened the show with a 45-minute set. Mac Saturn is a five-piece ensemble that delivers elements of pop-rock, Motown, funk and R&B music.

Lacrosse event at Seventh Generation field sticks to traditional teachings

JOSEPH SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

On July 6, the community came together once more at Seventh Generation where the traditional game of lacrosse gave an opportunity to intertwine culture and fitness.

Daniel Jackson, cultural representative for Seventh Generation, said that in making traditional lacrosse sticks, there are cultural teachings associated with it.

“So there are two types of sticks I have learned how to make,” Jackson said. “I also have heard Creation stories for each of the Great Lakes style, or Iroquois style, and there are many other tribes who have their sticks with their own teachings also. Starting with offering asemma to the type of tree you want to use for your stick, hickory and ash are the two types of wood I have been working with. The Great Lakes style will use a five-foot ash log and the Iroquois style uses a seven-foot ash or hickory.”

Jackson said it is a process they do right at Seventh Generation with the carving, steaming, bending, sanding, and stringing of the lacrosse sticks.

“Cultural significances are in the spirit in the Creation stories and the spirit of the materials used to make game pieces,” Jackson said. “The biggest difference is found in the materials you use and the spiritual connection that comes from creating your own game pieces.”

Jackson shared there is a cultural connection between tribes of the Three Fires when it came to hosting the regional lacrosse games.

“The Great Lakes style or the Three Fires Nation of the game is also known as Bagadowe. It is historically significant although not as popular. I would say recently though, there has been a surge in Bagadowe events (like the one last week) among a few other tribes in Michigan hosting this particular game,” Jackson said. “It’s one of my lacrosse favorites due to the fact it was used as a distraction to take over the fort in Mackinaw (or Miichkawanik), the place of the snapping turtle!”

Tonya Antoine, administrative assistant II for Seventh Generation, said sponsors and collaborations with others make many events like lacrosse possible.

“SCTC (Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College) Extension Program helped in funding some of the glow lacrosse sticks and Guadalupe Gonzalez helped secure funding through a grant to purchase the band saw used in the wood shop to make the sticks,” Antoine said. “SCIT Recreation purchased the box for the equipment that is now housed and stored here at Seventh Generation.”

Guadalupe Gonzalez, project coordinator for the SCTC Extension office, said the grant goals include fitness and culture among others.

“The traditional lacrosse sticks that are made at Seventh Generation are a perfect fit for those grant goals,” Gonzalez said. “Our continued partnerships with the Seventh Generation program affords us the opportunity to put both of our resources to good use and this is a great example of that.”

Antoine believes many of Seventh Generation’s event are successful because they offer families an opportunity to get together where the cooking and preparing of meals is done for them.

“Food has always brought people together,” Antoine said. “No matter the celebration or gathering, food is an important component, especially for something as strenuous as lacrosse it takes a lot of energy to play the game. Being a parent of athletes, it is important to stay hydrated for any type of sport. Water being the key element to replenish the body.”

Like many family friendly events held at Seventh Generation, Cultural Manager Lee Ann Ruffino encourages community participation at every gathering.

“Everyone is welcome to participate in Seventh Generation cultural workshops, feasts, and all other events. There are no requirements for these offerings at Seventh Generation,” Ruffino said. “There are cultural reps that can assist the community and any specific traditional teaching they are looking for, all you have to do is come over, offer some semaa (tobacco) and they will help you the best that they can. The staff at Seventh Generation are here for our Tribal community, many people come to our department to receive guidance on sacred medicines, regalia, drum, traditional lacrosse, traditional healing, food sovereignty and much more.”

Ruffino said when we practice traditional activities, such as hunting, gathering, dancing, drum, sweat lodge, traditional games, etc., that is in a true sense “fitness.”

“I consider it not only physical fitness, but it keeps our body, mind and spirit fit as well,” Ruffino said. “In today’s world, we often separate fitness and daily life, like they are two different things, when we learn how our ancestors lived, we then realize that these were not separate, but the same.”

Gardening Workshop held at Seventh Generation's Elijah Elk Cultural Center

JOSEPH SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

With the support of several Tribal departments, the USDA Rural development grant and the National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA), a May 23 Gardening Workshop featuring speaker Tina Frankenberger was offered at the Seventh Generation Elijah Elk Cultural Center.

Frankenberger is Anishinaabe kwe and a practitioner of traditional manoomin (wild rice) harvesting who resides in the M-22 Peninsula near Peshawbetown. She serves on the Grand Traverse Band of Odawa Indians Tribal Council and is an advocate for Native American food sovereignty.

Frankenberger shared with a capacity crowd that “gardening should begin with a good spirit and not let emotions like anger affect the process of indigenous farming.”

“It is very important that you always go into your garden with a positive attitude. Our emotions and state of mind is a vibration we are emitting to the world,” Frankenberger said. “Feelings of anger, sadness and jealousy are all lower vibrations. Feelings of happiness, joy, love and peace are much higher vibrations. The emotions that we feel effect not only people around us, but also the plants and seeds.”

Frankenberger believes just as your 'bad day attitude' transmits and brings those around you down into the dumps with you, it does the same thing to your plants.

“Your plants will thrive and produce so much more if you are sure to put good positive thoughts and intentions into your work,” she said. “The same is true when you prepare or cook your produce that you have grown (or with any food you prepare) you must always use good energy. Bad energy or negativity when preparing food can make the people who consume it sick.”

Frankenberger shared a teaching she learned is the power of having children help you in the garden.

“It is not only important to help instill the lessons of where our food comes from and how to care for it, but also allows children to add their beautiful, innocent happiness to the garden,” she said. “Children, especially the youngest children, have such a pure spirit that hasn't been tainted with

Tina Frankenberger

'rules' and 'guidelines.' The pure positive energy and happiness they exude brings a thriving energy to your garden and produces a greater production.”

Frankenberger continued, “The hard programming our adult minds have been brain washed by colonizing society to believe that your rows need to be straight and everything needs happen in a certain way or time is false... Seeds planted in what you think is the wrong spot or the wrong order is just your mind trying to overpower the natural flow of energy. Children stepping on plants that you want to grow or pulling out the plants you planted can be a gentle positive learning opportunity versus a drastic reaction of anger and frustration. The benefits of a child's happiness and joy in our gardens far outweighs the few extra moments to be a thoughtful and patient teacher.”

Lee Ann Ruffino, cultural manager for Seventh Generation, asserts the connection the Anishinaabek once had to the land was strong and said she believes that this connection to the lands is extremely important today, for our well-being, especially for the next generations.

“This year, Seventh Generation gave out semaa (tobacco) seeds and mandaamin (corn) seeds for the Garden Workshop,” Ruffino said. “The semaa seeds are a traditional variety and have been passed down from many years ago, from Milton ‘Beaver’ Pelcher. The mandaamin seeds that were gifted to the community, were from friends from the Oneida Nation in Wisconsin. I encourage all of the community to come out and visit the Kina gwaya do'gtigan (Everyone's Garden) at 7th Generation, to learn, volunteer and take some homegrown veggies to enjoy.”

Frankenberger shared how the teachings of the four sacred medicines (tobacco, sweetgrass, sage and cedar) are being honored at the Seventh Generation greenhouse.

“I believe it our duty to have a good reciprocal relationship with our sacred medicines,” Frankenberger said. “These medicines were/are gifts from our Creator that were plentiful and readily available to us help our ancestors and Creator hear our prayers clearly, to help heal us physically and emotionally, to help protect and stabilize our spirit and physical body in this dimension. The medicines are there to help purify and cleanse us to be seen and heard clearly. It helps to guide us on our path in this physical world.”

Tonya Antoine, administrative assistant II for Seventh Generation, works in collaboration with SCTC Extension office and hosts the gardening workshop every year. The SCTC Extension program assists in the garden box give away as Seventh Generation provides seeds to the community.

“Every year the event grows larger and larger due to the interests of those wanting to grow their own food,” Antoine said. “There is a spiritual connection there with our people and we used to live off the land as Creator intended us to do so, not wasting and sharing goods. It is important to teach these things as they are getting lost with our teachings and we are the holders to our future generations. As a child, my father aided in our garden and we would be excited to see things grow, as well as enjoy the fruits of our labor.”

Frankenberger said “sacred medicines are critical to our wellbeing as Native people” and believes it “is critical that we take steps to propagate, reintroduce and share our medicines.”

“Expanding the greenhouses at Seventh Gen would allow more work space to propagate seedlings to give to the community so they can once again have all of our sacred medicines available,” Frankenberger said. “I also believe education and support are vital to assist the community on how to care for our sacred medicines: preparing of the soil and water needed to support each one. There is large variation between what tobacco and sage need and what cedar and sweetgrass need to grow.”

Frankenberger said for the past few years, obtaining tobacco seeds is getting easier than it once was.

“And our native tobacco isn't exactly the same as commercial tobacco so this work is very important,” Frankenberger said. “The same is true of our native cedar; you can go get other varieties of cedar at the local greenhouses and nurseries, but most of it is not our native cedars. I myself had search to find a nursery that had our native cedar and they only supplied bare root saplings not potted trees.”

Frankenberger said sweetgrass is very difficult to find in its natural setting.

It is frowned upon by the community when the few patches of existing sweetgrass are uprooted to transplant in gardens, yards and boxes, she said.

“It would be amazing to have cultivated sweetgrass available for Tribal Members through restoration work and the medicine is needed by neighboring tribes and communities,” she said. “I believe the same to be true of our native sage because they're not many patches and they are hard to find and access sometimes. There is sage available commercially, but it too tends to not be our native sage.”

Michigan State University scholar program students learn Tribal culture during tour

JOSEPH SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

On July 15, Michigan State University students from the Hal and Jean Glassen Scholars Program took a field trip to Tribal cultural and environmental facilities.

Stratton Lee III, assistant director for undergraduate programs and the MSU College of Agriculture and Natural Resources (CANR), led the delegation of six as they toured the Tribal Water Treatment facilities, the Seventh Generation greenhouses and maple syrup processing facilities and the Ziibiwing museum.

SCIT employees who assisted with the tours included Shannon Peters, director of Utilities; Alden Andy, water operator; Lee Ann Ruffino, cultural manager for Seventh Generation; Tonya Antoine, administrative assistant II for Seventh Generation; Troy Techlin, manager of SCIT Environmental; and William Johnson, interim director of the Ziibiwing Center.

“I think it’s important and necessary that our future employees, influencers, and leaders be aware of the interconnectedness of nations, resources, and people,” said Stratton Lee III. “I hope that this introduction to the Tribe and all the great things you’re doing will remain with the students and that they will, in their ways, build meaningful relationships, partnerships, and opportunities in their future. I know that this trip and our time together have helped me to learn about the career opportunities available. I will encourage students and my peers to consider the options offered through the Tribe.”

Scholar Casey Frump was impressed at the wealth of services the Tribe has to offer.

“The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe with its water treatment facilities and the Seventh Generation cultural activities is certainly one of the most welcoming and immersive places I have ever been,” Frump said. “From the greenhouse and gardens to the people working, volunteering, or visiting the property, it was a beautiful cultural experience and one I would not have had anywhere else...”

environmental studies and sustainability.

“It’s quite impressive and inspiring how self-sufficient you all are with the clean and waste water facilities, etc., and how traditions have been slightly modernized, as with the sacred medicines,” Kuiper said. “The pure kindness exuding from, for example, the community garden, where everyone is allowed to take what they need, is exactly what we need in this world. I am so grateful for the opportunity to have seen the work you all are doing firsthand for the community.”

Scholar Clement Eboigbodin enjoyed the cultural aspects of the Tribe.

“It was indeed an eye-opening experience. Learning about the plight of the Anishinaabe, the effects of colonization and the role of boarding schools on the Tribe was profound,” Eboigbodin said. “The favorite part of the trip for me was listening to your teaching on the cultural heritage of the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe and the Seven Grandfather Teachings. Those teachings are still very applicable to all humanity today.”

Anishinaabe Kwe Shannon Martin shares teachings on summer feast at Seventh Generation

JOSEPH SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

Match-E-Be-Nash-She-Wish (Gun Lake) Potawatomi Tribal Member and Founder of Cultural Pathways LLC, Shannon Martin, spoke at the summer feast celebration at the Seventh Generation’s Elijah Elk Conference Center on June 22.

Martin is also a Lynx Clan member and descendant of the Lac Courte Oreilles Band of Lake Superior Chippewa. Since birth, she has been an active participant in Midewiwin ceremonies, powwows, treaty demonstrations and other cultural events.

“The niibing (summer) feast time is culturally and historically for Anishinaabe to really shine,” Martin said. “This is our opportunity to plant, sing, dance, garden, fish and our time to put our hands and moccasin feet in the heart of Mother Earth and doing good work.”

Martin continued, “I heard an elder auntie from Manitoba refer to this time as the Anishinaabe New Year, the solstice time of the summer. During this time, we are with our semaa (tobacco) and we place that on the ground with our prayers and intentions for the future.”

Martin also shared with the large crowd in attendance that there is a responsibility that comes from a “blood memory connection when we plant our medicine in the spring not to forget to take care of those gardens in the summer.”

“Just like our children and teachings, once you plant, we must continue to nurture and keep watch over all those things you put in Mother Earth with good intentions to provide sustenance and healing for the community,” Martin said. “We need to make sure those plant spirits have enough water and space with room to grow and it’s our time to demonstrate as Anishinaabe that the work the of spring season continues in the summer.”

Martin said she was appreciative of all the families in attendance and was reminded of a time where Anishinaabe got together like this more frequently.

“This is our time to extend our circles to include families and friends outside our own region and making those opportunities happen to visit and learn from each other,” she said. “Summer is also the time to travel and it’s the time to make new connection and to strengthen the depth of friendships already made.”

She continued, “During this time, we embrace new experiences and encourage each other and as Anishinaabe, we encourage families to spend much time together. This is why many communities in Indian Country offer their ceremonies and powwows in the summer to bring our people home.”

Martin encouraged the families in attendance to “enjoy the gifts that the Creator has given us” and reminded everyone that the “heart of the Anishinaabe can be found in nature.”

“Whether it’s spending time in your garden, going hiking and canoeing with friends, camping, getting on the lake to go swimming and fishing, taking your family to the beaches on the Great Lakes... these are the activities that connect our people to nature,” she said. “It’s also a good time to visit those sacred sites like the Sanilac Petroglyphs, Pictured Rocks lakeshore or Tahquamenon Falls. It’s also a time where families can visit the repatriation grounds of their ancestors and those passed away from your family and honor them with good medicine and keep their teachings alive.”

According to Tonya Antoine, administrative assistant II for Seventh Generation, the event’s meal included: buffalo roast, perch, wild rice casserole, strawberries, mashed potatoes and strawberry shortcake – made with strawberries from Seventh Generation’s community garden.

“We enjoy cooking for these feasts to celebrate the new season,” Antoine said. “Creator has blessed us with these ways of life and it is awesome to embrace and teach these ways for our future generations.”
